

A Living Room With Seasonality

words SUNNY HUBLER photo JOE PURVIS

THIS LIVING ROOM, PART OF A CUSTOM BUILD BY CHARLOTTE-based Knight Residential Group, is a stylish twist on traditional modern design. Knight Residential, founded by Vernon Knight III, builds exclusively in Charlotte and Kiawah Island. They're a full-service residential construction company, and while they specialize in high-end custom construction that runs the gamut in terms of aesthetic, the projects are all characterized by the team's signature attention to detail, quality, and standard.

This Charlotte home was completed by Knight Residential in June of 2017. To achieve the lived-in, inviting look, Stefanie Johnson's Space Lift company led the interior styling. The living room was finished off with a Precast Surround System, a beautiful, highly-detailed ceiling, and signature steel interior french doors. Part of the reason for the accessibility built into the design was due to the fact that the interior living room leads into an outdoor seating area, creating a Charlotte-friendly "four-season" space.
